"We have to pay for that..."

On occasion while shopping with Ivy we will buy something just for her. It could be anything from sunglasses to pants to Sippy cups, but no matter what we get Ivy is thrilled. She will hold it like a treasure for the rest of the shopping experience. Yet we get to the checkout counter she refuses to let go. Often wailing as the poor worker quickly scans the item...

We live in a world where everything has a price. To Ivy this may seem strange, but we know nothing is for free. If it was we would all have helicopters and mansions! But in reality everything has a price. And this extends far beyond the shopping mall. Good grades require time and brains. Friends require opinions and attitudes (sometimes they even have a certain dress code!).

Over time we will find we are not products of our own making, but products of the things in which we are involved! For while we thought we were the ones buying in reality we were the one being bought...

What is a D-now?

First, the "D" stands for disciple, so really the weekend is all about discipleship—training to become the image of Jesus, to live our lives as He would.

But, what you really want to know is what happens. Our ministry will be divided up by grades, and girls from guys. Each group will meet in a separate home and have their own leader. The leaders will come from as far away as Kansas City and are normally in their early twenties. In a small group they will lead bible studies, discussions, and activities in the homes. We will all come together on Saturday for worship and a crazy event!

The weekend long event will begin Friday night with everyone meeting at the Activities Bldg. Then the groups will go to their host homes for the weekend. On Saturday all the groups will come together for fellowship, worship, and dinner. Then the groups will go back to the host home. D-now comes to an end with the groups arriving at the church for Sunday School.
